

Interpretation Technician (Summer Position) 2022

Cole Harbour Heritage Farm Museum, Cole Harbour, Nova Scotia

The Museum

The Cole Harbour Heritage Farm Museum is an original Cole Harbour farm, cultivated continuously for over 200 years. It has operated as a community museum since 1978 and is owned and operated by the Cole Harbour Rural Heritage Society (CHRHS). The museum site is a rural oasis tucked into the middle of a now bustling urban centre, and consists of 12 buildings. Of those, two are historic houses, six are historic barns and outbuildings and the remainder are museum support structures. This "open air" museum also includes gardens, pastureland, pathways and a small wetland and natural reserve. In addition to the heritage buildings, the museum collection consists of approximately 4000 artifacts representing the evolution of agriculture in the area, along with the implements and personal items of the peoples who made Cole Harbour home. A small representation of traditional farm animals is kept on site along with heritage gardens and native species of trees and shrubs, creating our living collection. The site contains a busy tearoom and gift shop within the original farmhouse, as well as a working blacksmith shop, and is a cultural and social hub for the community of Cole Harbour. The Museum operates on a free will donation basis, welcoming over 20,000 visitors per year.

The Position

The goal of the Interpretation Technician will be to assist the museum to bring about interpretive updates and augment and enhance interpretation through thoughtful use of artifacts and images from the museum collection. Guided by the museum's Interpretive Plan, the chosen candidate will create and implement a plan to refresh exhibit spaces. They will work closely with the Collections Manager to identify areas of need; interpretive signage that needs recreating; areas in the museum that are under-interpreted, and parts of Cole Harbour's history that are under-represented. This will be done primarily through rotation and careful selection of artifacts, updating of existing interpretive signage, and creation of new signage.

Reporting to the Director and working closely with the Collections Manager and Interpretation Committee, the duties of the Interpretation Technician will include:

- Perform an exhibits assessment of all buildings and exhibit areas to ensure readiness for the 2022 visitor season, i.e. polishing glass, dusting, sweeping, vacuuming and general refreshing as required;
- Beyond its maintenance function, this task is included to familiarize the Interpretation Technician with all of the Farm exhibits;
- Learn to recognize and identify key elements of designing and placing interpretive panels;
- Assist in the choosing of artifacts to refresh exhibits, taking care to account for preservation and conservation needs;
